THWAITES is a township and parochial chapelry in the civil parish of Millom, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west from Green Road station on the Furness railway and 3 south-west from Broughton in Lancashire, and is in the western division of the county, ward of Allerdale-above-Derwent, Bootle union and petty sessional division, county court district of Whitehaven, rural deanery of Gosforth, archdeaconry of Furness and diocese of Carlisle. The Black beck flows through the township. The ancient chapel of St. Anno, erected in 1721, was rebuilt about 1807. The present church of St. Anno, occupying a more elevated site on the opposite side of the road, was consecrated and opened 30 July, 1854; and is a building of stone, in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, south aisle, south porch, and bell gable with 2 bells; the nave is separated from the chancel by a handsome and lofty arch and the aisle is divided from the nave by an arcade of four arches, on Norman piers. The east window is stained, and in the nave is a memorial window to Agnes Postlethwaite, d. Sept. 13, 1853, and there are others; the chancel is fitted with carved benches, and has a mural tablet of marble to William Lewthwaite esq. of Broadgate d. 1867; and Eleanor, his wife. The pulpit and font are of Caen stone; the latter is supported on four columns of Purbeck marble, and both are handsomely carved. The organ was erected in 1887, the cost being met by public subscription; the church affords 400 sittings. The living is a perpetual curacy, gross yearly value £140, with residence, in the gift of certain landowners, and held since 1874, by the Rev. John Falcon M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford Smithson's charity of £40 in securities, produces 16s. a year for bread, and 16s. for the Board School; the principal is secured on glebe land purchased with Queen Anne's bounty.

At Swinside, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north from the church, and in a very retired spot, are megalithic remains of pre-Roman date; these now (1894) consist of about 54 stones, forming a circle about 80 feet in diameter, but several are now prostrate; this circle is illustrated in the "Gentleman's Magazine" for 1785. Broadgate, the property and residence of William Lewthwaite esq. D.L., J.P. is delightfully situated on the top of a hill about a mile from the church, and commands an extensive view of the surrounding country and the Irish Sea. Chappels, a mansion of stone, in the Scotch castellated style, is the property and residence of James Brockbank esq. J.P. and stands on an eminence in the midst of extensive woods affording a charming view of the Whicham valley to the sea, the Black Comb Screes, Coniston Old Man, and other features of interest. High Duddon, the property and residence of Mrs. Rawlinson, is agreeably placed on a hill slope in the midst of beautiful woods and affords a very extensive view, including Duddon Bridge and the surrounding hills. Hazel Mount a neat house standing on an eminence, is the property and residence of the family of the late John D. Newton esq. The Oaks is the property and attractive residence of Thomas Barlow-Massicks esq. J.P.

HALL THWAITES is a small hamlet close to the church, consisting only of a few houses, most of which are irregularly placed and present a humble appearance. The woollen manufactory and dye works of Mr. J. B. Moore, situated here, are upon an extensive scale, and give employment to several hands. Lord Lonsdale is lord of the manor.

DUDDON BRIDGE is a hamlet, 1 mile west from Broughton-in-Furness. Over the river Duddon is a handsome stone bridge of three arches. Near here are extensive and long established charcoal iron works. Duddon Hall, about 1 mile distant, is now the property and residence of William Millers Rawlinson esq. lord of the manors of Dunnerdale and Seathwaite

LADY HALL, 3 miles west from Broughton-in-Furness, is a small hamlet, delightfully situated on an eminence, and commanding extensive views of the county of Lancaster, the Duddon river, and the railway across the sands. W. Lewthwaite esq. J.P., D.L. of Broadgate Thomas Barlow-Massicks esq. J.P. of the Oaks, W. M. Rawlinson esq. of Duddon Hall, and James Brockbank esq. J.P. of Chappels, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil clay and marl. The chief crops are barley oats, turnips, and grass. The population in 1891, was 335
