MILLOM is a modern market town, owing its rise to the development of the iron industry, with a station on the Furness railway, and is 273 miles from London, 30 south-east from Whitehaven, 13 south from Ravenglass, and 16 north by rail from Harrow-in-Furness, in the Western division of the county, Allerdale-above-Derwent ward, Bootle union and petty sessional division, county court district of Whitehaven, rural deanery of Gosforth, archdeaconry of Furness and diocese of Carlisle. The "Local Government Act, 1858" (21 & 22 Vic. c. 98) was adopted by the town 5th March 1875, but under the provisions of the Act of 1894 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73) the town is now governed by an Urban District Council of 16 members, and is divided into 4 wards. The town is well laid out, lighted with gas from works in Millom road, and has a good supply of water from works at Baystone Bank, Whicham, both works being the property of the Urban District Council. Under the provisions of the above named Act, Millom Urban District has been formed into a township.

The ecclesiastical parish of St. George was formed out of the old parish of Millom, March 4th, 1879. The church erected during the period 1874-77, at a total cost of £13,465, is an edifice of native red sandstone with freestone dressings, in the Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave of five bays, north aisle, north porch, and an eastern embattled tower with spire: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1877. The living is a vicarage, with Haverigg annexed, net yearly value £335, with residence, in the gift of five trustees, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Albert Ernest Joscelyn B.D. of Jesus College, Oxford. St. Luke's church at Haverigg, erected in 1891, at a cost of £1,522, is a building of blue slate stone, with red sandstone dressings, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, north porch, and a bell gable with one bell: the church will seat 200. The foundation stone of a mission hall, in connection with St. George, was laid 28 September, 1896, by Archdeacon Sinclair, on a site given by the Earl of Lonsdale. The Catholic church, in Queen street, dedicated to Our Lady and St. James, and erected in 1888, at a cost of £1,450, is an edifice of brick and stone with freestone dressings, in the Early English style, and has about 550 sittings. The Wesleyan church, also in Queen street, erected in 1875, at a cost of £2,865, is a substantial building of local stone, dressed with freestone, and will seat 800. The Bible Christian chapel, in Newton street, erected in 1871, at a cost of about £1,200, is a building of stone, seating about 400, and there is another at Haverigg, erected in 1873 at a cost of about £800, with 300 sittings. The Primitive Methodist chapel, in Holborn hill, erected in 1866, will seat 250, and that at Haverigg, erected in 1877, at a cost of about £1,200, seats 400. The Baptist chapel, in Crown street, erected in 1884, affords 280 sittings. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodists hold their services in the Temperance hall, Mainsgate road, which seats 500. The Salvation

Army fortress, in Nelson street, is a structure of brick, erected in 1889, at a cost of £640, and will seat 600. The Spiritualists have a meeting house in Holborn hill. The Hodbarrow Mining Co. Limited, work an extensive deposit of hæmatite iron ore, situated here, on the estuary of the river Duddon. The ore, which is of the richest quality, lies partly under the foreshore of the estuary, and the company have constructed a sea wall and embankment, at a cost of upwards of £120,000, in order to exclude the sea from that portion of the shore under which the ore is lying. The company employ about 1,300 hands, and raise about half a million tons of ore annually. The works of this company, and the extensive iron works of the Millom and Askham Hæmatite Iron Co. Limited, employing about 600 hands, are the chief causes of the continued prosperity of the town. The Market Hall and Urban District Council offices, at the entrance to the town, erected in 1879, at a cost of £3,500, are of stone and include a tower with clock. The County Hall, Market square, seats about 900. The Central Hall, in Holborn hill, will seat about 600; James Fawcett, proprietor. The Co-operative Buildings, consisting of several shops and a large hall above, holding 800 people, were erected in 1888, at a cost of £5,253. The Free Public Library and Science, Art and Technical School is a structure of brick, in the so-called "Queen Anne" style; it was originally built for a Working Men's Institute, but was purchased in 1891 by the late Local Board, at a cost of £1,800, and devoted to its present purpose; it has since been enlarged, and now consists of a capital reading room and lending library and three art class rooms; the library contains about 8,000 volumes, and issues 30,000 volumes annually. The Millom Detachment of the 1st Volunteer Battalion (The King's Own) Royal Lancaster Regiment has a drill hall in Holborn hill; the hall is also used for public assemblies, and will hold about 400 people. The Volunteer Fire Brigade station is at the Market Hall. Leyfield House, pleasantly situated on an eminence overlooking the town and surrounding district, is the residence of Cedric Vaughan esq. J.P. Duddon Villa, on the west bank of the river Duddon, is the residence of James Campbell esq. The area of the township and urban district is 1,311 acres: rateable value, £85,131; the population in 1891 was 8,895 in the township, and 7,322 in the ecclesiastical parish of St. George.

Haverigg is a village of considerable size, about one mile south-west of the town, and forms a ward within the urban district of Millom.
