

MILLOM is a modern market town, owing its rise to the development of the iron industry, with a station on the Furness railway, and is 273 miles from London, 30 south-east from Whitehaven, 13 south from Ravenglass and 16 north by rail from Barrow-in-Furness, in the Western division of the county, Allderdale-above-Derwent ward, Bootle union and petty sessional division, county court district of Whitehaven, rural deanery of Gosforth, archdeaconry of Furness and diocese of Carlisle. The "Local Government Act, 1858" (21 and 22 Vic. c. 98) was adopted by the town 5th March, 1875, but under the provisions of the Act of 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) the town is now governed by an Urban District Council of 16 members, and is divided into 4 wards. The town is well laid out, lighted with gas from works in Millom road, and has a good supply of water from works at Baystone Bank, Whicham, both works being the property of the Urban District Council. Under the provisions of the above-named Act. Millom Urban District has been formed into a civil parish, known as Millom Urban. The ecclesiastical parish of St. George was formed out of the old parish of Millom, March 4th, 1879.

The church, erected during the period 1874-77, at a total cost of £13,465, is an edifice of native red sandstone with freestone dressings, in the Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave of five bays, north aisle, north porch and an eastern embattled tower with spire: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1877. The living is a vicarage, with Haverigg annexed, net yearly value £375, with residence, in the gift of five trustees, and held since 1908 by the Rev. Frank Pascoe. St. Luke's church at HAVERIGG is a chapel of ease to St. George's, erected in 1891, at a cost of £1,522, is a building of blue slatestone, with red sandstone dressings, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, north porch and a bell gable with one bell: the church will seat 200. The Rev. Joseph William Reginald Bache M.A. of Durham University, has been curate in charge since 1911. The foundation stone of a mission hall, in connection with St. George's, was laid 28 September, 1896, by Archdeacon Sinclair, on a site given by the Earl of Lonsdale. The Catholic church, in Queen street, dedicated to Our Lady and St. James, and erected in 1888, at a cost of £1,450, is an edifice of brick and stone with freestone dressings, in the Early English style; and has about 550 sittings. The Wesleyan chapel, also in Queen street, erected in 1875, at a cost of £2,865, is a substantial building of local stone, dressed with freestone, and will seat 800. The United Methodist chapel, in Newton street, erected in 1871, at a cost of about £1,200, is a building of stone, seating about 400, and there is another at Haverigg, erected in 1873, at a cost of about £800, with 300 sittings. The Primitive Methodist chapel, in Holborn hill, erected in 1866, and partly rebuilt in 1907 at a cost of about £500, will seat 250, and that at Haverigg, erected in 1877, at a cost of about £1,200, seats 400. The Baptist chapel, in Crown street, erected in 1884, affords 320 sittings. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodists hold their services in the Temperance Hall, Mainsgate road, which seats 500. The Salvation Army fortress, in Nelson street, is a structure of brick, erected in 1889, at a cost of £640, and will seat 600. The Spiritualists have a meeting house in Holborn hill. The Hodbarrow Mining Co. Limited work an extensive deposit of hæmatite iron ore, situated here, on the estuary of the river Duddon. The ore, which is of the richest quality, lies partly under the foreshore of the estuary, and the company have constructed a sea wall and embankment, at a cost of upwards of £120,000, in order to exclude the sea from that portion of the shore under which the ore is lying; another embankment was completed in 1905 at a cost of £600,000. The company employ about 1,300 hands, and raise about half a million tons of ore annually. The works of this company, and the extensive iron works of the Millom and Askham Hæmatite Iron Co. Limited, employing about 600 hands, are the chief causes of the continued prosperity of the town. The Market Hall and Urban District Council Offices, at the entrance to the town, erected in 1879, at a cost of £3,500, are of stone and include a tower with clock. The County Hall, Market square, seats about 900. The Central Hall, in Holborn hill, will seat about 600; John Henry Gendle, proprietor. The Co-operative Buildings, consisting of several shops and a large hall above holding 800 people, were erected in 1888, at a cost of £5,253. The Market day is on Saturday. The Free Public Library is a structure of brick, in the so-called "Queen Anne" style; it was originally built for a Working Men's Institute, but was purchased in 1891 by the late Local Board, at a cost of £1,800, and devoted to its present purpose; it has since been enlarged, and now consists of a reading room and lending library, and three art class rooms; the library contains about 8,000 volumes, and issues 30,000 volumes annually. The Millom Detachment (H Company) of the 4th Battalion The King's Own (Royal Lancaster Regiment) has a drill hall in Holborn hill and a rifle range at Haverigg Haws; the hall is also used for public assemblies, and will hold about 400 people. The Millom Rifle Club has a range at Haverigg Haws. The Volunteer Fire Brigade station is at the Market Hall. Millom and Bootle Joint Infectious Diseases Hospital was erected in 1905 at a cost of £2,200, and has 18 beds, and in 1914 an extension was built at a cost of about £1,200, and provides an additional 16 beds. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 1,455 acres of land and 8 of inland and 189 of tidal water and 857 of foreshore; rateable value, £108,212; population in 1901, 10,426 and in 1911, 8,612, and 6,949 in the ecclesiastical parish of St. George in 1911.

The population of the wards in 1911 was:—Haverigg, 2,119; Holborn Hill, 1,724; Newtown North, 2,925; Newtown South, 1,844.

HAVERIGG is a village of considerable size, about one mile south-west of the town, and forms a ward within the Urban District of Millom. Sextons:—St. George, Samuel Mellen; St. Luke, John Craghill.
