

KIRKBY-IN-FURNESS.

LOCAL INFORMATION.

Kirkby Ireleth, or as it is now more generally named, Kirkby-in-Furness, is situated on the estuary of the Duddon, about half-way between Askam and Foxfield, and lies five miles North-West of Ulverston. It is composed of several small hamlets, the chief of which are Beckside, Sandside and Soutergate. The total population at the last Census was 1,206. The principal objects of interest are the Church and Kirkby Hall. The Church, situated in Beckside, was probably built late in the 12th century, the south doorway and the windows in the chancel attesting its Norman origin. A chapel on the North side was added in the reign of Henry VIII., which was extended into an aisle at the restoration in 1884. The living is of the net value of £280, and is in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of York, the present incumbent being the Rev. G. W. Sykes, M.A., formerly Exhibitioner of University College, Oxford. Kirkby Hall is a Tudor Mansion, and was formerly the residence of the Kirkby family, who owned the Manor from Norman times down to the beginning of the 18th century, when they were compelled to part with it through difficulties brought upon them through espousing the King's cause in the Civil War. It is now in the possession of Lord Richard Cavendish, of Holker Hall. The chief industry of Kirkby is slate quarrying. The quarries extend above a mile in length, and the slate produced is of a very excellent character. Splendid views of the glorious scenery in the neighbourhood can be obtained from Kirkby. Looking over the Duddon towards the north-west the range of the Cumberland mountains can be seen, and many of the principal peaks can be distinguished. At the back of the valley rise the wild, rugged fells. On the south-west a grand view of the open sea may be had.
