

BROUGHTON-IN-FURNESS,

KIRKBY-IRELETH, SEATHWAITE, DUNNERDALE, WOODLANDS, BECKSIDE, GRIZEBECK, HEATHWAITE, FOXFIELD, CHAPLE, CROSSBECK, GILLBECK, SANDSIDE, SOUTARGATE, AND ANGERTON.

BROUGHTON-IN-FURNESS, or WEST BROUGHTON, is a small market town and chapelry, in the parish of Kirkby-Ireleth and hundred of Lonsdale, north of the Sands, 270 miles N.W. by N. from London, 30 N.W. from Lancaster, 85 N.W. from Manchester, and 10 N.W. from Ulverstone. The town is healthfully and pleasantly situated, about half a mile from the river Uddon, which is navigable within the like distance of the bridge; and on the declivity of a gentle eminence, with a south aspect; it is a station on the Coniston branch of the Furness line, and, at FOXFIELD, there is a junction of the Whitehaven and Furness railway. The town is in the form of a square, and the houses, which are chiefly built of stone and covered with slate, have a clean and respectable appearance. The introduction of machinery has superseded hand spinning of woollen yarn, which was formerly a source of profit to many of the inhabitants. The vicinity abounds in woods, consisting chiefly of ash, oak, and alder, which are cut down periodically, and converted into hoops and brush stocks, large quantities of which are sent from here annually. John Sawrey, Esq., who is lord of the manor, and presents to the living of Broughton, holds a court baron, at the King's Head, annually, in the month of April.

The church of Broughton is an ancient structure, and is dedicated to Saint Mary Magdalene; the living is a perpetual curacy, value £135 per annum, is in the gift of John Sawrey, Esq. J.P. Two public schools are in the chapelry. The surrounding country, which is mountainous, abounds with slate and the minerals peculiar to the Furness fells. The air is salubrious, and the inhabitants famed for their longevity—in evidence of which a stone in the churchyard is shown, under which repose the remains of seven members of the same family, who attained the respective ages of 78, 80, 84, 92, 94, 101 and 104 years. About twelve miles hence, in the parish of Ulpha, in Cumberland, is Hardknot mountain and Hard Castle—the latter, some remains of which are still visible, was built by Ulpha, the first king of East Anglia, during the Saxon hierarchy, to defend the only pass between the east and the west shores. The market is held weekly on Wednesday, and the fairs April 27th, August 1st, and October 6th, principally for horned cattle and mountain sheep. The acreage of the chapelry is 5,790, and the population in 1881, was 1,183.

KIRKBY-IRELETH is an extensive parish, in Ulverstone poor law union, and hundred of Lonsdale, north of the Sands. The parish comprises the townships of Kirkby-Ireleth, Broughton West, and Dunnerdale, with Seathwaite, and is also divided, for parochial purposes, in four districts—Heathwaite, Woodlands, Low Quarter and Middle Quarter, which contains the small hamlets and villages of Beckside, Grizebeck, Heathwaite, Foxfield, Chaple, Crossbeck, Gillbeck, Sandside, and Soutargate. The village of Kirkby is situated about 5 miles N.W. by W. from Ulverstone, and 4 from Broughton. In the neighbourhood are extensive quarries of a dark blue slate, of excellent quality, chiefly in the occupation of the Duke of Devonshire, with which vessels are laden, at the mouth of the river Uddon. Kirkby is also a station on the Furness and Whitehaven line.

The church, situated at Beckside, is dedicated to Saint Cuthbert, and is an ancient stone building, supposed to have been founded by Alexander-de-Kirby, who, in the reign of Henry III, conveyed it with forty acres of land to the abbey of Furness. It contains several ancient monuments, and its windows exhibit some beautiful specimens of stained glass. The living is a discharged vicarage, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of York. There is also a parochial school at Beckside. The other villages are unimportant, and very small places. Acreage of parish, 25,740, of the township of Kirkby Ireleth, 9,010. Population in 1861, of the parish, 8,138, and the township 1,666 of that number.

SEATHWAITE is a chapelry, or ecclesiastical parish but for other purposes forms a joint township with Dunnerdale. Seathwaite is 7 miles, and Dunnerdale 3 miles N. from Broughton. The scenery in this neighbourhood, and the sequestered vale of Uddon, is enchanting, and furnished a theme for the poet Wordsworth's verse. The chapel in Seathwaite is a small stone building—the living is a curacy, of the annual value of £80, and this village also contains a parochial school. Acreage of Seathwaite, 7,000; population, 171—of Dunnerdale, 3,940; population, 118. Letters through Broughton-in-Furness.

WOODLANDS is a chapelry, and one of the divisions of Kirkby-Ireleth parish, containing a station on the Coniston branch of the Furness line. The chapel is a small building—the living, a perpetual curacy, is in the gift of the land owners. Population returned with the parish.

ANGERTON, or Angerton Moss is 2 miles S. of Broughton, and about 1½ miles from Kirkby-Ireleth.
